WELL KNOWN MOKENA CITIZEN DIES SUDDENLY

Mokena, June 25—A beautiful life was brought to a close when Mrs. Philippine Bechstein answered the call of the Heavenly Father and departed from this life Saturday night June 19th. Mrs. Bechstein was the daughter of Wilhelm and Catharina Jacobs and was born in Frankfort township on September 18, 1852. Living in a Christian home, the deceased received a thorough religious instruction and was confirmed on Palm Sunday, April 9, 1865 at the Evangelical church.

On June 17, 1871 she was united in marriage to Robert Bechstein. The union was blessed with three children, William Henry, Robert Adam and Catharine Sophia.

In the all wise providence of God, it was decreed however that their happiness should be of brief duration. On October 28th, 1881 the Silent Angel of Death entered their home, taking the husband and father and leaving behind three children of minor age to the care of the mother. With much wisdom and ability she fulfilled the task that was placed upon her, always trusting in the Lord as her helper.

Eighteen years ago Mrs. Bechstein was called to part with her only daughter, Catharine Sophia, the young wife of Warren T. Harper, who passed away on May 17, 1902 at the age of 26 years.

Some 39 years ago Mrs. Bechstein moved with her family to Mokena where she made her home up to the time of her death. Her end came very suddenly and unexpectedly, but peacefully. For sometime she had been afflicted with heart trouble. Saturday she was about her home as usual and the evening she had visited with some of her neighbors and friends and upon retiring did not complain of not feeling well and was apparently in her usual health. On Sunday morning her son, William found her dead in bed at about 9 o'clock. The shock to Mr. Bechstein as well as to the community was very great. At the time of her death Mrs. Bechstein had attained the age of 67 years, 9 months and one day.

In the passing away of this good Christian mother, the community as well as the church sustains a great loss. A woman of sterling qualities, faithful to home and to duty, loving and loyal to family and friends, cheerful and optimistic ever—she made a host of admiring friends who knew her but to love her. The departed was a life long member of St. John's German Evangelical church and a most valuable and active member of the Ladies Aid and for many years she faithfully fulfilled her duty as treasurer and president of this society.

We all feel the great loss and share the sorrowful bereavement that has befallen the family. The following survive to mourn her untimely demise: Wm. H., of Mokena and Robert R. of Chicago and their families as well as many other relatives and a great wide circle of friends. The Heavenly Father is the comfort of those who mourn.

Funeral services were held from the late home to the St. John Evangelical church on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, the Rev. Wm. Kreis, officiating. The coffin was banked with a great mass of beautiful floral offerings from the members of the Ladies Aid Society, relatives and friends. A mixed choir from Joliet sang a number of beautiful selections. The Rev. Mr. Kreis preached in German and English. The Ladies Aid members formed a lane at the church thru which the funeral party passed.

Interment took place in the family lot in the St. John Cemetery south of Mokena.

This was the largest funeral seen in Mokena in many years. The St. John church was far too small to accommodate the hundreds of people who had come from many miles around to pay their last tributes of respect.

CARD OF THANKS

To all our relatives and many kind friends who assisted us in our bereavement at the passing on of our beloved mother we desire to express our heartfelt thanks.

W. H. and R. A. Bechstein

CALLED HOME

(Contributed by a Frankfort friend of Mrs. P. Bechstein.)
Like as a ship her voyage o'er,
That safely has reached port
So one by one our loved ones go,
To join God's Heavenly Court.

We grieve not, as those without hope,
And feel we are not blest,
Because our Lord has chosen that
They first should win their rest.

This change is but as if they passed
Into an inner room,
A living soul was never yet
Held prisoner in a tomb.

In that fair land called Paradise
Released from care and pain,
Our Saviour has prepared a home,
Where we shall meet again.

There is no death, our sojourn here,
But fits us to lay down
This earthly tenement of clay,
To gain a golden crown.

We know our loved ones are not dead,
But just beyond the tomb;
They've put on immortality,
Our Lord has called them home.

JERRY IS DEAD

"Jerry" the well known old dog friend who greeted one at the shoe shop of George Schreiber is dead. It may seem funny to mention a dog's death, but then "Jerry" was different from other dogs as he was a wise old dog and at times seemed to have human intelligence in his instincts. Old age proved to much for this favorite pet and much as he disliked to do it Mr. Schreiber had to have his pet shot to put him out of his misery.

A CORRECTION

Through a typographical error in last week's Tinley Park column it was stated that the Coopers Grove Lutheran church were to give a dance at their 4th of July picnic to be held on Sunday, July 4th. Of course it goes without saying that no dances are held on Sunday school picnics.

Ernest Rice of Blue Island has rented the dwelling of Mrs. Hans Hartman.

The Rock Island is having a force of painters engaged in painting the local depot.

John Scheer of Thawville has been visiting at the Wm. Steele home and with other Tinley Park friends.

A barn dance was held on Saturday night at the Fred Erichs farm 4 miles east of Tinley Park. A large crowd was present.

The old time dance directed at the Linden Garden last Saturday by Geo. Lorenz drew a good sized crowd and all enjoyed the old time music.

The SANDMAN STORY

DIPPER OF DIAMONDS

ON BRIGHT nights one can see gleaming in the sky a formation of stars which resembles a dipper in shape. But once, thousands and thousands of years ago, this dipper lived in the home of a peasant girl.

It was then just a simple tin thing, with a rusty handle.

The mother was taken suddenly sick one night and called to Greta to bring her a dipper of water. Though it was cold and dark outside, the daughter dressed and ran to the spring at once, filled the dipper and started home. Suddenly in her path appeared a tiny puppy.

"I am so thirsty," said the puppy.

"Can't you let me have some of the water?"

"I promised to bring it to my mother," said Greta. "But I know you need it at once. Drink."

"Please, miss, for heaven's sake, give me a sip of water," said a feeble voice at the side of the path. Greta looked closely and saw an old man hobbling along with his cane.

"I have to bring some to my mother," returned Greta. "But you can have a drink, for I know you are weary. Rest by this rock." So the old man took a deep draught from the dipper, which almost emptied it.

Greta ran on toward the house, but she heard another sound at her side. It was as if someone had fallen and was hurt. She looked closely and saw a ragged, aged woman lying on her side with the blood flowing from a cut in her head and her eyes tightly closed.

The girl did not stop to think about how little water she had. She poured a drink down the woman's throat and bathed her wound with the rest. The old woman opened her eyes slowly.

"Can you help me home, child?" asked the sick woman. "I live down by the spring."

"Certainly," replied Greta. "I have used all the water for which my mother sent me and will have to return to the spring anyway. I will be glad to help you."

So with the old woman leaning on her strong, young arm, Greta went slowly back to get the water. On reaching the spring the woman knocked on the rock above it and the stone opened, admitting them to a big chamber carved out of the solid earth. Gems gleamed from the walls, and on all sides were rich furnishings glittering with jewels, golden statues and pictures. Some music sounded and the girl held her breath in astonishment as the ragged woman changed suddenly into a handsomely dressed sprite.

"I was only testing your heart," said the sprite. "I am the fairy of this fountain and know why you came. Here is a golden flask full of water for your mother. It will cure her at once. Here, give me your old dipper."

The sprite filled it full of flashing diamonds, each one as large as a bean.

"Run home now," said the sprite. "But be careful that my old enemy, the North Wind, does not hit you. He lies about at this hour to harm all my friends."

Greta hid the flask of water in her dress and held the dipper in her hand. Rapidly she ran, but she could hear the wind coming after her. Faster and faster she flew, but onward roared the old North Wind. Just as she got to her door her foot caught in a root of a tree and she tumbled. Out of her hand flew the dipper, but it did not fall—the North Wind grabbed it and blew it up into the sky. And there it sticks yet. But, fortunately, the diamonds were saved, for they all fell out on the ground, so that Greta found every one. Up in the sky today gleams Greta's dipper, shining as brightly as it did thousands of years ago. (Copyright.)

ABOUT REDUCTION

DID you ever eat baked celery? Stewed celery? Celery and oyster broth? Celery is not just a relish to go with a large dinner. It is a splendid food in itself—and it will not add weight. If the woman who wants to reduce quickly, comfortably, and without looking old after she is thin, Eat of Foods That Will Not Add Flesh Yet Will Nourish You.

will substitute celery for soup or fatty vegetables, she will lose weight. If you want to grow thin, you must not eat milk, cream or cheese, for milk is 4 per cent fat and cream and cheese 18 per cent. You must not eat the meat of the pig—which is 30 to 40 per cent fat, bacon being almost 70 per cent. You must not eat olive oil for that is 100 per cent fat, indeed, it is the fattest form of nourishment. You must not eat wheat, buckwheat, rice, oats, potatoes, macaroni or corn, for these contain from 1 to 4 per cent of fat. Neither must you eat sugar or candy, figs, bananas, grapes, chestnuts or walnuts, for these contain either fat or carbo-hydrates, which are fattening.

This sounds like a long list, but in reality it is a very little one. All other meats you can have, and fish and oysters, green vegetables and salads, eggs, fruits. I have given the above list of the foods most necessary to avoid, since it is easy to memorize. The woman going in for reduction will know then what foods not to order for her table. Avoid drinking with meals.

The worst things to give up are sugar and butter and cream. But tea taken weak with lemon is more delicate than tea with cream and in place of sugar one can purchase saccharine. (Copyright.)

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

RED-SHOULDERED HAWK.

"I think it is a perfect shame," said the Red-Shouldered Hawk, "that such wrong stories could go around about me, and not only that they could go around about me but that they have gone around about me."

"What wrong stories have gone around about you?" asked the Griffon Vulture.

When the Griffon Vulture had been free and out of the zoo his nest had been high upon a cliff which no creature could reach.

He was a coward as all his family had always been and probably always will be. He wouldn't go after prey which could fight him back such as living prey, but he would feast on things that had been killed.

He had a musky or animal smell which he liked himself!

"What wrong stories have gone around about you and are going around about you?" asked the Griffon Vulture again.

"You see," said the Red-Shouldered Hawk, from his cage, "I lived in Eastern and Northern America before I came to the zoo. I am very much like the red-tailed hawk and he too is very badly treated. The same stories have gone around about him. We look very much alike, Cousin Red-Tailed and I, and our families are very much alike, too."

"You see they have said we were like the hen hawk and that we did the same things as the hen hawk does—stealing chickens and all sorts of things like that."

"Of course we don't. These stories have gone around and it is very hard to stop stories that go around even if they aren't true. We're brown speckled and reddish in color and we're used to wearing these suits and couldn't really change. But we do wish folks would know that we aren't hen hawks."

"Why do you care what they think of you?" asked the Griffon Vulture, his horrible and cruel face turned toward the Red-Shouldered Hawk. "They think horrible things of me," he added.

"Yes," said the Red-Shouldered Hawk, "but they are true. You are a horrible creature, a coward and all sorts of worthless things and you don't mind in the least. You have no desire to be nice."

"Creatures Think We're Hen Hawks."

"That's true enough," said the Griffon Vulture. "I don't see the use in bothering to be nice. It would be such an effort."

"It isn't such an effort for some creatures to be nice. And I do not do the things that the old hen hawk does and neither does my cousin and his family, the Red-Tailed Hawk family."

"We suffer for the sins of the old hen hawk. Creatures think we're hen hawks and persecute us because they think we're bad. Many of our family have been killed because folks thought they belonged to the Hen Hawk family."

"My advice to you," said the Griffon Vulture, "is to be bad and mean and live up to your reputation."

"We couldn't do that for worlds," said the Red-Shouldered Hawk.

"Why not?" asked the Griffon Vulture. "If they think your family behaves in such a way then behave in such a way and get some fun out of your bad reputation."

"We wouldn't disgrace the family name no matter what folks thought of us," said the Red-Shouldered Hawk, "and we're only hoping that one of these days folks will know the truth about us and that we aren't the hen hawks. We hope they will know that there are two kinds of hawks like the hen hawks in looks but not in ways."

"You're queer, all right," said the Griffon Vulture.

"Queer to want to be decent?" asked the Red-Shouldered Hawk.

"That is queer to a Griffon Vulture." "I suppose it is," said the Red-Shouldered Hawk, "but luckily the world isn't made up of Griffon Vultures."

"We wouldn't care to make up the world," the Griffon Vulture ended, "as we like to prey on what other creatures are dead."

"And we want that truth known about us, the truth that we're not bad as they think," ended the Red-Shouldered Hawk.

Life's LITTLE JESTS

Disappointed.

"Ethel, didn't I see that young man in the parlor holding your hand last night?"

"Yes, mother."

"What was he doing that for?"

"I really don't know, mother."

"You don't know?"

"No, mother; I did think he was going to put a ring on my finger, but he didn't."

Well Educated.

Bixen—There is a man who has the distinctive art of learning two wonderful accomplishments.

Dixon—What are they, pray? He looks so common.

Bixen—I know he does, but he can press his pants as perfectly as any tailor and can smoke a 15-cent cigar with the manners of a millionaire.

Just at the Limit.

Her Husband—Do you mean to say, you're actually going to wear that new evening gown? Why, they pinched a vaudeville woman for less than that.

Mrs. La Mode—I should think they would. Less than this would be quite too daring.

In Hock.

"I pity the poor pawnbroker, pa."

"What for?"

"Just think of the watches he has to set back in this daylight saving business."

Mind Readers.

Professor (to students in lack of room) Can you all hear me back there? Chorus From Back Row—No, sir—Punch Bowl.

The Substitute.

"Chloe, did you put a sufficiency of saccharine substance in the pudding?" "No, ma'am; I didn't hab none ob dat. I jes' used plain sugar."

BETWEEN GIRLS.

"She says she wishes she could see herself as others see her."

"That's just an excuse for spending a lot of time in front of a mirror."

Of Course.

Of all the queer folks we have met in our travels roundabout, The chap who poses questions is The queerest, without doubt.

The Special Ones.

"Jones' refusal to buy his wife an automobile got on her nerves."

"I suppose it got on her motor nerves."

His Status.

"My doctor tells me he cured a matinee actor's indigestion by the use of a little sweetened water."

"Then the actor is a sugar-cured ham."

Naturally.

"That man has not a well-furnished mind."

"I suppose that is the reason he has such a vacant expression."

The Near Future.

"They must be very rich people." "They are. They dress in denim and calico and have potatoes and prunes on their table every day."

The New Shopper.

"Please give me enough money for car fare, dad."

"Surely, but where are you going?" "Shopping!"—Cartoons.

The Retort Courteous.

"I would like to give you a piece of my mind."

"So generous of you to give of your necessity and not of your abundance."

Big Game.

"Who is the man surrounded by an admiring crowd?"

"A big game hunter."

"Ah! Is he just back from Africa?"

"No; from the mountains of this state. He led a posse that captured 23 moonshiners and nine stills with a total of 1,500 gallons a day."

Unsuitable.

"Look how that table has been set."

"What's the matter with it?"

"The angel cake side by side with the deviled ham."

Off Again, On Again

STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN

The Car Nut.

That every village has one, is a thing you can't dispute. He is a sort of genius—a mechanical galoot.

Back in the old bicycle days he rode a racing wheel—

He'd tell how many centuries he'd done right off the reel!

And when he wasn't riding one, he had a pedal off—

He was as loony over "bikes" as some men over golf.

But now he's in the seventh heaven; there's gear-grease on his mug.

And he can tinker all he likes—the village auto bug!

The keenest joy his soul can know is taking one apart. To grind the carbon on a valve plumb satisfies his heart.

To wear a set of jumpers and a greasy cap, why, say!

Upon a sea of glory he just simply floats away!

And when he has one out to test, it's viscera all showing.

Without the hood, he listening close to hear how it is going:

Mmmm-hmmmm! There isn't anything could ever, ever put Another drop of bliss into the being of that nut!

Folks pay him for the work, but shucks! It's such a waste of money. He'd do the same thing for his board, because to him it's funny.

He'd use a monkey wrench at meals if anyone would let him;

He'd tie his tie with a stilton—sure!

That stunt would never faze him. He hooks up wifery with the pliers, with skillful twist and tug.

He eats, drinks, dreams machinery—this village auto-bug.

Fight, and the world fights with you. Neutral, and you neut alone.

FARMERS LEARNING BENEFIT OF CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING

A Busy Grain Elevator, the Purpose of Which is to Effect Savings for Its Members Because It is a Co-operative Institution.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"See that bunch of horses over yonder?" asked the farmer, indicating six or seven animals which were impatiently crowding against a fence in an endeavor to nibble some corn growing just beyond the reach of their outstretched noses. "There's a marketing lesson in what those horses are doing. If they only knew it a little pushing in unison would lay that fence flat, but the trouble is they don't understand, and so they won't push together."

Then, after a pause: "Human folks are a bit like those horses. A lot of them don't know how to push—and pull—in unison. Think of the untapped power those animals have, and think of the infinitely greater power we intelligent humans have, when we learn to co-operate. That's the word: Co-operation! A good many farmers have learned its big advantages, but their number is still small beside the millions who might benefit from it."

"There is the Tillamook County Creamery association, for example," continued the farmer. "That's a wonderful organization which has set a lot of people to thinking; and the beauty of it is, their achievements are getting bigger every year."

Recent figures from Tillamook.

This farmer's thoughts had been turned toward co-operative marketing by reading a recent report from Tillamook County Creamery association in Oregon, composed of 25 farmer factories which co-operate in the sale of their products. The report of the secretary-manager for 1919 indicates that the total sales of cheese from these 25 factories amounted to $1,954,039, with additional receipts for whey cream of $32,305 and for whey butter, $2,506. With the estimated sales from miscellaneous sources amounting to $18,635, the total for the year was $2,007,475.

In the first year of its existence, 1909, this organization handled 32,000,000 pounds of milk and 2,500,000 pounds of cheese, and its sales totaled $386,135, showing that the total sales almost quadrupled in ten years. The sales for the entire decade reached the astonishing total of $8,612,000. Thus far the production for 1920 is

CEREALS FOR BREAD SUPPLY

Corn, Wheat and Buckwheat, Staple Breadstuffs, Are Raised Nearly Everywhere.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cereals, such as corn, wheat, and buckwheat, are raised nearly everywhere throughout the United States. These grains are staple breadstuffs, but the general practice of farmers is to buy flour and meal rather than grind or have their own grain ground for home use. In certain sections where custom grist mills are found, farmers still have some grain ground into flour and meal for home use. Occasionally a farmer is found who has his own little mill and who makes his own flour and meal.

Cornfield on Government Farm at Beltsville, Md.

running 23 per cent ahead of 1919, and 1919 was 20 per cent over 1918.

Four factors have played an essential part in making this co-operative achievement possible, and they apply very generally to co-operative marketing of farm products. First, the farmers were brought to clearly recognize the needs for united effort in solving their marketing difficulties. Second, there was available in their communities a volume of business sufficient to make co-operation worth while. Third, given these two conditions, the farmers met the need by adopting and enforcing standards for their dairy products. This has improved the quality of the output, and has produced uniformity, thus making possible the effective use of a brand and of advertising on a large scale. Fourth, the association has employed efficient sales methods.

Standardization Essential.

The difficulty of pooling the output of several cheese factories in Tillamook county lay in the absence of standardization. In consequence, the association engaged an inspector and placed him in general supervision over the cheese making of the member factories. From the start this inspector has made regular visits to each plant, giving suggestions and assistance when needed. The money spent in his salary has repaid the association many times over.

The cheese is inspected, and if found to conform to the standard set up by the association, is sold under the organization's brand. This brand has become known in nearly every market on the Pacific coast, and the reputation which has been built up for this association's cheese gives that body a decided advantage in the markets.

In many other lines the co-operative principle has been tried out with pronounced success, notably in fruit and vegetable marketing associations, grain elevator companies, and co-operative creameries. Farmers have also proved the value of co-operative purchasing. Anyone interested in co-operative marketing or purchasing should write for information to the bureau of markets, United States department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., whose experts have made a careful study of the subject.

THE AVERAGE FARM FAMILY CONSUMES

about 6 barrels of flour in a year. In the South, the average annual consumption of corn meal is about 500 pounds per family and in the North about 50 pounds. The consumption of buckwheat and rice is low, except in areas where these crops are generally grown, and even there it is usually less than 100 pounds per family. Most farm families use home-baked bread, though in some cases the farmers buy their bread from bakers who drive through the country.

SCRUBS

A scrub is an animal of mixed or unknown breeding, without definite type or markings. Such terms as native, mongrel, razor-back, dunghill, piney woods, cayuse, broncho and mustang are somewhat synonymous with "scrub," although many of the animals described by these terms have certain fixity of type even though they present no evidence of systematic improved breeding.

GOOD BUSINESS PROPOSITION

No More Do We Look Upon Selection of Seed Corn as Fadd—Now Thoroughly Approved.

Time was when the selection of seed corn on the farm was looked upon somewhat as a fad. Sentiment, though, has changed until today we have come to consider the field selection of seed corn as a thoroughly approved business proposition.

KILL WEEDS BY CULTIVATING

Those Just Germinating or That Have Not Yet Obtained Strong Root. Hold Easy to Destroy.

Weeds that are just germinating or that have not yet obtained a good root hold on the soil are very easily killed by light cultivations such as can be accomplished with the harrow or the weeder.

POULTRY

MITES ARE MOST INJURIOUS

Little Insects Suck Blood of Hen and Seriously Affect Her Ability to Lay Eggs.

If the best results are to be expected from the poultry flock, the buildings must not be allowed to become overrun with mites. Mites are more troublesome and more harmful than lice. They do not live upon the birds like the lice, but during the day hide in the cracks and crevices of the roosts and walls of the house, and at night they come out and get upon the fowls. They suck the hen's blood, and if allowed to become plentiful—as they certainly will if not destroyed—will seriously affect her health and consequently her ability to lay eggs.

Mites may be eradicated by a few thorough applications of kerosene or some of the coal-tar products which are sold for this purpose, or crude petroleum, to the interior of the poultry house.

The commercial coal-tar products are more expensive but retain their killing power longer, and they may be cheapened by reducing with an equal part of kerosene. Crude petroleum will spray better if thinned with one part of kerosene to four parts of the crude oil, according to poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Both the crude petroleum and the coal-tar products often contain foreign particles, so should be strained before attempting to spray. One must be sure that the spray reaches all of the cracks and crevices, giving especial attention to the roosts, dropping-boards, and nests, and the treatment should be repeated two or three times at intervals of a week or 10 days.

GUINEA FOWLS ARE FAVORED

Hardest of All Domestic Poultry and Great Hustlers—They Keep Away Marauders.

There is no good reason why more guineas should not be kept on the farm. They are just about the hardest of all domestic fowls, and perhaps also the greatest hustlers, yet they seldom do their hustling to the injury of the garden or lawn. While quite domestic in their habits if treated gently, their wild nature leads them to remote parts of the homestead, where they pick up a large part of their living that would be overlooked by any other kind of fowl.

On farms infested with hawks, guineas are very valuable, their vigorous protests against every approach of the foe actually frighten them away. And no strange cat or dog can come on the place without their emphatic protest.

GOOD SHELTER FOR TURKEYS

Plain, Substantial House of Shed-Roof Type, Dry and Ventilated Is Recommended.

A plain, substantial house of the shed-roof type, dry, amply lighted and well ventilated, is the better way for providing shelter for turkeys.

Such a house simplifies the keeping of turkeys, and has many commendable features, for the successful turkey farmer, besides making easy the care and attention necessary at certain seasons of the year.

TURNING EGGS FOR HATCHING

Not Necessary, According to Professor Kaupp, Expert of North Carolina Station.

Turning eggs while saving them for hatching, although generally recommended and practiced by poultry keepers, is believed to be unnecessary. Rather thorough tests conducted by Prof. B. F. Kaupp of North Carolina station show no gain in hatchability of eggs turned every day over similar lots which were kept undisturbed until placed in the incubator.

FOWLS GET LAZY IN SUMMER

Some Hens Are So Inactive That They Do Not Earn Their Feed During Hot Weather.

As a rule hens do not show great activity during hot weather, but there are some which become so lazy that they are not worth their feeding. Those are the hens that cut down their egg yield. Hot weather is worse for hens than cold weather, for during the winter months a hen with any life in her will busy herself to keep warm.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

MAN IS AFTER INFORMATION

After Listening to Much Sage Advice, Bill Jones Wants One Matter Cleared Up.

Our friend Bill Jones is a traveling man and needs rest, but unfortunately he doesn't sleep well. He has consulted a number of doctors in the various towns he visits, and being a systematic person has made a sort of digest of the advice he has received. It sums up as follows:

Don't sleep on your left side, as that creates a pressure on the heart.

Don't sleep on your right side, as it interferes with the action of the right lung.

Don't sleep on your back, as that is bad for the nervous system.

Don't sleep on your stomach, as that causes a pressure bad for the digestion.

"Don't sleep in a chair, as the body cannot properly relax."

Bill wants to know if anyone can tell him how to keep from falling over when he sleeps standing up.

A Difference.

"I understood there were scandalous goings on at the party last night."

"Oh, no, grandma; the young folks merely indulged in some osculatory diversions."

"Well, that was all right, but that rascally Jimmy told me you were all playing kissing games."

Ever notice that when you are on time the other fellow is invariably late?

Most of the movements to right the wrongs of the people stop after the first parade disperses.

Sometimes an easy-going person is hard to get rid of.

Why Brunswick Tires Win Preference

There are two main reasons—one, the name itself, which certifies superfine value—the other, that time tells the same story.

Thus reputation and performance unite in giving you all you expect—and more.

Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires. Many motorists would pay more readily, but the Brunswick idea is to GIVE the utmost, rather than to GET the utmost. And this has been true since 1845. You can appreciate what Brunswick Standards mean by trying ONE Brunswick Tire. It will be a revelation. You'll agree that you could not buy a better, regardless of price.

Selfishness Gains Nothing.

Men should see life as more than a means of personal advancement. Selfishness may achieve, but its inglorious gains will soon be forgotten in the round of yesterdays. It's life that lives for the common good that lays tribute on humanity and carves an indelible name in the very foundation of history. Call it Utopian if you will. Facts show that men must die to really live. And men who give themselves to human betterment live as they raise others from unreasonable drudgery to honorable toil and common comforts.

Customs Worth Preserving.

In Bavaria, before the war at least, there were all sorts of kindly little celebrations and other things which made life friendlier and more pleasant. If an employee had remained in the same place for five, seven, ten years, etc., his employer frequently gave him a sort of little jubilee celebration. Nor did the employees forget the chief's birthday or "nameday." Nothing expensive—a glass or two of wine, a cake, a little friendly speech.

JOE RYAN

Joe Ryan felt that he just had to be a villain to keep up the natural fitness of things. He was born at the foot of Devil's Tower, in Crook county, Wyo., and he just naturally had to play he was a bad man. That he succeeded is evidenced by the hisses he receives in nearly every city and town in this broad land. But away from Vitagraph's thrilling serials, he is one of the most quiet and likable men in the motion picture world. And to prove it he is being co-starred with in a serial.

Salvadoran Celebrations.

The people of Salvador celebrate March 15 as a holiday in honor of General Morazan, who was elected president in 1830 of the Central American federation. In 1832 he suppressed an insurrection against the federal government in Salvador, in 1838 a revolution in Guatemala and in 1842 in Costa Rica. The people of Salvador also celebrate March 1 as a holiday.

ANTONIO MORENO

Inspired by the advice of an American actress, Antonio Moreno joined a stock company at Northampton, Mass., after completing his course at Willistown Seminary. Soon he was engaged by Leslie Carter and later appeared with Constance Collier in "Thais." Then he went into silent drama and played with Edith Storey, Irene Castle and Pearl White. Then Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, placed him under a long-term contract and introduced him to the serial. His fiery black eyes, black hair, complexion of "golden pallor" and a talent for expression make him the ideal type for the screen.

Liked the Name.

One of the government-owned dwellings near the Union station, Washington, is occupied by a stout colored woman who has converted it into a small hotel for folks of the darker race. Over the door is a signboard with the inscription, "The Annex." I asked the woman to what other hotel was her place an annex. "Oh," she replied, "dat's jes de name of my hotel. Dar ain't no other hotel 'nected with it. I jes picked de word 'Annex' 'cause it sounds high-toned like."—Washington Herald.

Not Strong on Ablution.

The Aizu feels that by washing his face and hands on great occasions he has paid his debt to civilization. The Tibetan considers that the oil of the body contributes needed warmth in his mountain life and refuses to wash it away, but does not object to washing his face and the tips of his fingers once in awhile.

WILLIAM DUNCAN

Before he was an actor, William Duncan was an athletic instructor and a writer for physical culture magazines. He first appeared on the stage with Sandow, the strong man, and later toured the country at the head of his own dramatic company playing Hamlet. Today he is known throughout the world as a serial star and director. Upon completing "Smashing Barriers" Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, furnished Mr. Duncan with a serial the production of which will cost $1,000,000.

"The Silent Avenger" is the title of the new serial. It was written by Albert E. Smith and Cleveland Moffett. In this Mr. Duncan is given ample opportunity to show his skill as a fancy shot pool player, expert on the tennis court, and clever slight of hand performer. The thrills provide the star-director with material in which to demonstrate his strength and ability as an all-round athlete. He insists on realism and will assume great risks to stage a thrill as it should be performed. He will not use dummies or substitutes. If the thrill is in the script, Mr. Duncan insists that it can be performed and he does it regardless of the hazard.

His leading lady, Edith Johnson, is equally courageous and follows William Duncan to the limit. They have been associated in several serials, including "The Man of Might" and "A Fight for Millions."

Surprised Mother.

The missionary society was meeting at our house and the woman who was to lead the devotionals took the elastic band from her Bible, laid it on her lap and began to turn the pages to find the passage she was to read. During the solemn silence my young son marched over to her and, picking up the elastic, he announced: "Why, that's my mother's garter!"—Grit.

Anything Is Possible.

While one man says of a thing: "It is impossible!" and contents himself with saying so, another one passes him and does it. This has been the history of the world's progress ever since time began. We cannot say of anything that it is impossible in this marvelous world of invention and endeavor. We can only say: "It has never yet been done."

LADY LARKSPUR

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

"DON'T BE A FOOL!"

Synopsis—Richard Searles, successful American playwright, confides to his friend, Bob Singleton, the fact that, inspired by the genius of a young actress whom he had seen in London, he has written a play, "Lady Larkspur," solely with the thought that she should interpret the leading character. This girl, Violet Dewing, has disappeared and Searles refuses to allow the play to be produced with anyone else in the part. Singleton has just returned (invalided) from France, where he had been serving in the aviation corps. His uncle, Raymond Bashford, a wealthy man, had contracted a marriage a short time before his death, while on a visit to Japan. He left Singleton a comparatively small amount of money and the privilege of residence in the "garage" of his summer home, Barton-on-the-Sound, Connecticut. Mrs. Bashford is believed to be traveling in the Orient. The household at Barton is made up of elderly employees of the Tyringham, a New York hotel, where Bashford made his home. By the terms of his will these people are to have a home at Barton for the rest of their lives. Singleton goes to Barton, taking with him the manuscript of "Lady Larkspur." There he finds the household strangely upset, some of its members being suspected by their comrades of pro-Germanism. Antoine, head of the establishment, informs him that he has been perplexed by the somewhat mysterious visits of a stranger, apparently a foreigner, seeking Mrs. Bashford. Antoine has formed the male members of the household into a guard for protection. Singleton reads "Lady Larkspur" with approval. "Aunt Alice" arrives unexpectedly, meets with a lively reception and turns out to be young and charming. Mrs. Farnsworth is her traveling companion.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

Antoine departed with a resentful twist of the shoulders, and I decided to meet squarely the matter of the visitors who had so troubled him.

"Please don't be frightened," I said as lightly as possible, "but these old fellows haven't enough to do, and they are full of apprehensions. They have been alarmed by an agent of some sort who wants to welcome you to America by selling you a piano on easy payments."

Antoine had been hovering inside, and my remark brought him to the door.

"Beg pardon, Mr. Singleton, but that party is not an agent, but quite different, sir. He came to the house, quite like a gentleman, several times, and asked if Mrs. Bashford had arrived. He came in a big car, and seemed disappointed, madame, that you were not here and not expected. A very well-spoken gentleman, and we'd have thought nothing of it except that a few days later I caught a man I was sure was the same party, but dressed in rough clothes, sneaking across the veranda right there where you're sitting. When I called to him he ran as hard as he could, and Graves—he's the vegetable gardener—saw him leaving the property by the back way."

"It's hardly possible that a man who impressed you as a gentleman when you saw him at the door should have returned in disguise and tried to break into the house."

"Oh," exclaimed Mrs. Farnsworth, "it would be so much more delightful if that were true! Any one in disguise is bound to be interesting. A disguise suggests most beautiful possibilities."

I could not be sure in the dim light of the veranda, but I thought I detected a white slipper cautiously reach out and touch a black one. At any rate, Mrs. Farnsworth lapsed into silence.

"Thank you very much, Antoine," said Alice. "It is very proper for you to tell me anything of any stranger on the property, but I see nothing here to be alarmed about. If the same gentleman calls again, let me know instantly."

"Very good, madame." And then, turning as though conferring upon me a part of his responsibility for the security of the premises: "It's a party with a limp; just a trifling limp, sir; you'd hardly notice it. A smallish man, rather dark, with a little mustache turned up at the ends."

"I have noted all these details, Antoine," I replied; and again I thought there was a telegraphic exchange between the ladies though this time a black slipper was the means of communication.

Torrence arrived in a moment, and nothing has ever given me keener joy than his shock of surprise at beholding Mrs. Bashford. I was devoutly grateful that he had not been present at the dinner-table, for my own efforts to interest Torrence in anything but the most practical matters had always been highly unsuccessful, and the discussion of ghosts and witches would hardly have amused him. As Mrs. Farnsworth and I took up the recent movements on the western front I overheard Torrence putting all the machinery of the trust company at Mrs. Bashford's disposal. It seemed almost a blasphemy to be talking of income and like matters to a woman like Alice Bashford!

They continued their conference for some time, but I got nothing out of Mrs. Farnsworth that shed any light on my aunt's history beyond what she had told me herself, which was precious little. Mrs. Farnsworth's talk was that of a cultivated woman. Her voice interested me unaccountably; the tones had all manner of shadings and inflections; it was curiously musical, but in speaking of the great war a passionate note crept into it that stirred me deeply.

"This has been a dark year for Alice," she remarked. "Mr. Bashford's death, followed quickly by that of her brother—an only son—piled a cruel burden of grief upon the dear child. She wants to go back to England to nurse the wounded, to do anything for our dear country, but I want to keep her here a little while until she can readjust herself. It is my task to encourage her in frivolity and the make-believe she loves—hence, our absurdities at the table. She's the drollest child, but with wonderful understanding. And at times it's not easy to keep the divine spark of play alive in her heart."

The light of one of the porch lamps fell upon Alice's face as she patiently gave heed to Torrence's account of his stewardship. One of her hands gently stroked the terrier that lay quietly in a chair beside her. I was sure that his painstaking description of assets and market values was boring her. Once her voice rose in expostulation. Torrence, I judged, was suggesting that legal means could be found to expel the old Tyringham employees from the Barton property.

"Oh, never in the world! It was quite like Mr. Bashford to want to care for these people in their old age. And—she laughed and turned toward me—"they can't be dislodged while Bob lives; and we don't want to part with him just yet."

I was glad to have him hear her address me in this intimate fashion. Tor-

"Those Women Are Under Suspicion."

ry always inspired in me a desire to shock him.

"I shall help Alice to break them in, Torry," I said, lingering upon her name for his special edification.

"Of course, Singleton," he replied. "I wasn't sure you meant to stay on. Pardon me, but I didn't."

"Oh, it isn't that Bob hasn't a right to stay," said Alice quickly; "Mrs. Farnsworth and I are hoping that he will like us well enough to share our exile on other accounts."

"I am engaging Mr. Singleton to explain American jokes to me," announced Mrs. Farnsworth. "Alice seems to get them, but I'm never sure."

It is a part of Torrence's business to counsel widows, which she does like the honorable man he is, but as he rose to go presently, remarking that his wife would motor down to call shortly, I caught a glimpse of his face that indicated deep perplexity. I left when he did.

"I want to talk to you," he said nervously when we were outside. "I'll send the car ahead to the gate."

When the shrubbery cut us off from the house he stopped abruptly and seized my arm. "What do you make of it?" he demanded.

"Make of what?" I asked.

"That girl!" he exclaimed testily.

"If you insist, I must avow that she's adorable, nothing else."

"Don't be a fool! You knew Raymond Bashford much better than I did, and you know perfectly well he never married a young girl of that sort! Those women are playing a trick, and I'm surprised that you don't see through it."

"My uncle was a man of taste and a gentleman," I answered deliberately. "There's nothing in the least improbable in his being infatuated with a young woman of charm and wit like this girl."

"I tell you it won't do," he insisted. "If either of those women at the house is Raymond Bashford's widow, it's the one who calls herself Farnsworth. They're playing a game of some kind, and it's no laughing matter, but it won't take long to find out what they're up to."

"You'll hardly go the length of having them arrested as imposters, Torrence—not without some data to work on!"

"Certainly not. You seem to be hitting it off with both of them, but I advise you to be on guard. Are you sure your uncle never sent you his wife's photograph? That would have been a perfectly natural thing to do."

"If I'd got a photograph, I should have headed for Japan, not for France," I laughed, but I was thinking deeply. His line of reasoning as to the incongruity of the marriage was not so different from my own that I could sneer at his suspicions. I shrank from telling him that I didn't care a hang whether the widow was a fraud or not. If the two women who had settled themselves on the Barton estate were imposters, they were extraordinarily daring and clever.

We were nearing a gateway where his car waited, and I saw several of the guard hanging about at a discreet distance. "Look here, Singleton," he said angrily, "you don't seem to take this business very seriously. You don't want to make the mistake of letting a pretty girl pull the wool over your eyes." He lowered his voice and added tensely: "Those women are under suspicion of something more serious than an attempt to rob an estate. An agent of the state department called on me yesterday and asked embarrassing questions about Mrs. Bashford. Not a secret service man, you understand, or anything of that kind, but an important man in the state department."

"Of course you knew nothing to tell," I suggested.

"I took a chance at lying to him about her expected arrival. I thought it only decent to have a look at the woman first. He told me nothing except that the British embassy had made inquiries and that the matter was delicate and must be handled carefully."

"Was this inquirer lame—a small dark man with a black mustache?" I asked, suddenly interested. "Such a person has been hanging about here, so the boys tell me?"

"Not at all! I may as well tell you it was Raynor—you probably remember him. He's a specialist in international law, and they took him into the state department just after the Lusitania business. He's a gentleman and a good fellow—I've played golf with him a good deal—and I hated to lie to him, but I thought I'd see this woman before telling him she had reached America."

I confess that I was a trifle dismayed by this. Raynor I knew slightly. Professionally and socially he stood high, and even without the prestige of his official position he was not a chap to sneeze at; but I didn't want Torrence to know I had any doubts as to the perfect authenticity of my uncle's widow.

"Oh, every transcontinental pilgrim is probably scrutinized closely these days," I remarked carelessly. "Mrs. Bashford has lost a brother in the war, and I haven't heard anyone talk more bitterly against Germany. And her companion certainly has no illusions about the Kaiser."

"I don't like the business," he declared stubbornly.

"Let's do nothing foolish," I insisted. "If Raynor has reason to suspect either of both of these women, we'll hear further from him."

"I've put myself in a hole," he said, angrily. "Of course I've got to advise him immediately that Mrs. Bashford is here."

"Just wait a few days; I undertake to keep them under surveillance; you can put the whole responsibility on me. If they attempt to leave, I'll warn you and Raynor instantly, but they have settled themselves as though they expected to spend the rest of their lives here."

I told him of Mrs. Bashford's adventures in reaching the house without convincing him that there was anything funny in her experiences, and he left on my promise to report to him daily at a given hour and instantly if anything unusual occurred. I was on my way back through the grounds when Antoine arrested me.

"Pardon me, but I'd like to ask what you think of it, sir?" he asked hoarsely, falling into step.

"If you mean what do I think of Mrs. Bashford," I replied sharply, "I think she's quite charming and delightful and all any one could ask in every way."

"The guard's set, sir; front and rear."

THE LURE OF ALASKA

Taku Glacier.

ALASKA, the land of mystery and silence, the land of the midnight sun and the Northern lights, the land of romance and gold, has a lure that draws men to it—and then draws them again and again. It is no mere legend that the North calls back those who have once lived in its snows and amidst its towering mountains and known the beauty of its summers. There may be exceptions among the great army of gold seekers who endured privations during the Klondike rush of 1896, but travel and entertainment conditions today are totally unlike those when, to quote Robert W. Service, "good men and bad men and bold" pressed into the Northland leaving their homes and their loved ones, "crying exultingly—Gold!"

There was an inadequate and inferior steamship service northward along the coast and no railroad to make easy the perils and hardships of passes, canyons and rock-fanged rapids where death was ever at the argonaut's elbow. Nowadays the traveler, leaving Victoria or Vancouver, speeds north a thousand miles to Skagway on a palatial steamship which winds in and out between picturesque islands and the mainland, and White Pass, the mighty Yukon, Miles Canyon and White Horse Rapids down which bold adventurers were whirled to safety or to death nearly a quarter of a century ago, are viewed in comfort from the windows of a railway train.

Up the Inside Channel.

The long inside channel from Vancouver to Skagway is so well guarded by innumerable islands from the storms of the Pacific that the passage is exposed to the ocean in but three short stretches which are quickly left behind. During the remainder of the trip past towering mountains and picturesque islands, gulfs and villages the ship is steaming through an endless lake, sometimes a few miles wide and then narrowing until one can almost throw a stone from the deck to either shore. At Alert Bay, the first port of call, the traveler finds himself in the land of totem poles, those huge, grotesque carvings representing the protective familiar, usually an animal, which each Indian selects for himself at his initiation into the tribe. Many of these poles are as tall as the houses before which they stand, and a close-range view discloses their weirdness of design.

Side by side with these strange totems of a passing race are salmon canneries packing the fish which are eaten throughout the world. Past Bella and through Queen Charlotte sound the ship moves northward to Prince Rupert and Port Simpson, and then enters United States' waters. Ketchikan, with the Stars and Stripes floating over it, is famed for its great salmon stream and thriving fishing industries. Farther north lies Wrangell with its many interesting totem poles, and then comes Juneau, capital of Alaska, from which the traveler can go by automobile, one of the swiftest things created by man, to the face of a great glacier, one of nature's slowest creations.

Wonderful Taku Glacier.

On Gastineau channel, close to Juneau, he can see three of the largest gold quartz mining plants in the world wrestling the yellow metal from the rocks. Near by, too, is Lynn canal, the most beautiful fiord in Alaska, and still another wonder of the Northland is mighty Taku Glacier, an astounding mass of ice one mile long and rising from the water from 200 to 300 feet. This great glacier, from whose summit huge bergs are constantly falling with a roar to the water below, is in plain view of the passing steamer. Some of these bergs, estimated to weigh 50 tons, disappear beneath the waves and reappear several times before they finally become floating islands of ice.

The trip by coast steamer ends at Skagway, once the wildest and wickedest city in the world, but now a model of propriety and known as the "Flower City of Alaska." Hard by is the grave of "Soapy Smith," whose gang of outlaws once terrorized the town before the strong hand of the law ended his career.

At Skagway the tourist goes over the famous White Pass by rail, a steel highway that is one of the great engineering feats of the world, to Carcross. At times the train glides along the side of a wall that rises hundreds of feet, while below are the dark depths of an abyss. Majestic mountains, waterfalls and flower-beset valleys please the eye as the train climbs Tunnel mountain, and then for 27 miles the railway follows the shores of Lake Bennett. Twenty miles north of Skagway is the international boundary and here the British and United States flags fly side by side.

Atlin Lake and Llewellyn Glacier.

Atlin Lake, which reflects like a huge mirror the snow-capped peaks that tower above it, is one of the scenic wonders of the North. This lake is 90 miles long and at its southern end is Llewellyn glacier, called "Big Ice" by the Indians. Out of it, apparently, rise mountain peaks which stand like huge sentinels on guard.

Continuing the trip by rail, Miles Canyon and White Horse Rapids, two historic gorges, are passed, and when the Yukon is reached, the tourist takes steamer again for a 461-mile trip on one of the world's greatest rivers to Dawson, made famous in song and story by Robert W. Service, Rex Beach, Jack London, and other writers. Dawson is still a great gold-mining center. Farther north is Circle City, 80 miles south of the Arctic circle, and Fort Yukon, where the sun may be seen at midnight for nearly two weeks during June. Seven hundred miles from Dawson the Tanana river empties into the Yukon, and on the 275-mile trip up the Tanana to Fairbanks a good view is afforded, if the weather be fair, of Mount McKinley, the highest peak on this continent. All in all, the trip to "the great, big, broad land" "way up yonder," as Service calls it in the "Spell of the Yukon," is one filled with rare charm and interest.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Freezone is magic! Corns lift off with fingers without pain

Hurt? No, not one bit! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift that bothersome corn right off. Yes, magic! Costs only a few cents.

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the mysterious ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius.—Adv.

Color to Show Denominations.

The treasury department at Washington is now working on a proposition to mark bills of various denominations with a standardized colored seal, so that anyone can recognize notes of different denominations at a glance. The plan, suggested by a Philadelphia druggist, is to have a colored seal in one corner of the bill, for instance, a green seal for a one, a pink seal for a two, a blue seal for a five, and so on. Treasury officials, however, dislike the idea of using different dyes.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Stale Goods.

"This sword is very old," said the curio dealer. "In fact, it is over a hundred years old."

"Indeed!" said the customer.

"Aye. It came from the battle of Waterloo—that was in the year 1815, sir—and there's an anecdote goes with it."

The customer listened patiently while the old man recounted the story. Then, at the conclusion, he returned the sword to its owner.

"Thank you! That was very interesting, and I quite enjoyed it," he replied kindly. "But, unfortunately, I bought that same anecdote once before with an old musket!"

THE COLD SORE

THE cold sore is a small, pink growth on the human lip which is more painful to a sensitive, shrinking nature than upsetting the consumme at a six o'clock dinner. It is one of nature's efforts to humble pride, and is sometimes so successful that the victim will not appear at the moving-picture show for a week.

All medical authorities agree that the cause of the cold sore is harder to Authorities agree that the cause of the cold sore is harder to locate than the relation of the average sermon to the text.

locate than the relation of the average sermon to the text. Some investigators declare it is caused by the same germ which brings on the hot-rising hay fever, while others say that it is due to eating the self-rising pancake. This latter theory seems to be disproven by the fact that thousands of people eat layer after layer of pancakes every morning in the year without incurring a solitary blemish, while others who live an abstemious life on oatmeal crackers and last night's milk are oftentimes stricken with a cold sore which resembles a blushing young onion.

The cold sore chooses its own time

Last Night's Dreams

—What They Mean

QUARRELING.

DOCTOR CORIAT says "Everybody dreams and ridiculous it may appear." But with regard to the prophetic quality of dreams he says: "From a strictly scientific standpoint such an interpretation would be very superficial in that it did not take into full cognizance all the complex facts which may produce a dream." For instance it must be proved what the event "foretold" in the future never existed as a wish in either the conscious or unconscious thought of the dreamer. In my experience I have yet failed to find one genuinely prophetic dream.

Yet all the scientists agree that the study of dreams from a scientific standpoint is still in its infancy and one scientist goes so far as to suggest that as our waking thoughts frequently contain the germs of our future actions so our dream thoughts may have in them similar germs.

Dr. Charles Mackay, in his well-known book, "Extraordinary Delusions," scoffs at the belief in the prophetic quality of dreams but remarks: "It has subsisted through all the changes that normal or physical revolutions have operated in the world and the record of five thousand years bears testimony to the universal diffusion of the belief."

The scientists would explain a dream of quarreling with a friend as the springing to life of some dormant idea regarding that friend lurking in the subconsciousness. Given the whole for budding. It is very particular to put in an appearance the day before some voluptuous social event, and when worn with a decollete gown and pink carnations makes a captivating color scheme. Every once in a while we read in the newspapers of some high society wedding having to be postponed on account of the groom's absence, but in nearly all of these cases it will be found that the bride-elect has come down with a luminous cold sore which cannot be hidden behind a tulle veil with any degree of success. It requires great fortitude and will power for an enraptured groom to stand up at the altar and run his neck through the yoke, under such circumstances, but it has been done.

There is no known cure for the cold sore except patience and hope. Some victims carry a camphor bottle and apply the contents in a stealthy manner, while others go forth defiantly into the world wearing a quarter section of black court-plaster. When a cold sore settles on the upper lip of man he can always circumvent it by growing a thick, branching mustache, but woman is denied this precious privilege and is obliged to suffer in silence.

The cold sore is probably given so that we will not become too proud of our looks. The man who can show pride with a bulbous cold sore on his lower lip has reached the point where any further inflation would result in a blow-out.

SCHOOL DAYS

dream Freud would, doubtless, see it tinged with neurosis.

What say the mystics? They say that to dream of quarreling with your sweetheart means that you are going to love each other better than ever. To quarrel with a friend means that your friendship is secure and that you will shortly enjoy yourself in his company, though some of the mystics are unkind enough to add that it also means loss of money. If you quarrel with a stranger it is an omen that you will soon make the acquaintance of an undesirable person. Any dream of quarreling signifies the reconciliation of estrangements and constancy in friendship. So quarrel all you want to in dreamland and keep the peace in the waking world.

BREAK IN TRAIN'S SCHEDULE

Fair Driver of Auto Had a Hunch and the Sequel Proved She Was Correct.

Let me recommend a ride in a new car with a woman driver as the best prescription for a thrill that will last a lifetime, writes a correspondent. Mine came when, after reluctantly accepting an invitation to ride from a friend who had just received her new machine, we mounted the incline to a grade crossing in a suburb and started across the tracks. In the exact middle the engine stopped and nothing we could do had the slightest effect on it. While working we were approached by an excited flagman. "A limited is due here in two minutes," he said, "and it never has stopped at this station."

"It will today," calmly replied my friend. And it did, but not before it had been flagged and the train crew helped boost us from the rails.

The Terrible Future.

"What's the matter?"

"I'm terribly worried about the future."

"Why fret about the future?"

"It's this way: I'm not making very much money. I'm just going along the ordinary way without piling up anything that looks like a fortune."

"Well, why worry? You're happy, aren't you?"

"Yes, I'm happy enough now, but twenty or thirty years from now, when the record of this age is written what shall I say to my children when they ask me what I was doing when everybody else was getting rich?"

Admiration Goes Out to Him.

We may say a fellow shows bad taste in devoting his life to painting or sculpturing, but at the same time most of us have a sneaking admiration for the one who can naturally do things we can't.

Hens' Behavior Caused English Youngster to Be Doubtful of Good Character of Vicinity.

Johnny recently paid his first visit to his aunt's farm in England. The little boy had not been there long before he came running to her in great excitement.

"Auntie," he exclaimed, with the air of one imparting grave news, "I don't think this is a very nice place!"

"Why, what makes you think that, Johnny?" was her amused reply.

"Well, auntie, the public houses (saloons) open very early," was the startling rejoinder. "Nearly all your hens have the hicoughs already this morning."

Taking After Mother.

Bert just came home from college, and he had a "shadow" on his upper lip. He stopped to say "Hello" to his grandfather.

His grandfather looked him over and said, "Why, son, you look more like your mother every day."

"What makes you think so?" asked Bert.

"Why, because your father had a mustache that came down to his chin. Just look at that one of yours; you must take after your mother."

More Critical.

"Kind sir," began the measly mendicant, "the Lord loves even the meanest and most humble of us, and—"

"I am more particular!" interrupted J. Fuller Gloom. "On your way!"—Kansas City Star.

Back Giving Out?

That "bad back" is probably due to weak kidneys. It shows in constant dull, throbbing backache, or sharp twinges when stooping or lifting. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands the world over. Ask your neighbor!

Acid Stomach Makes the Body Sour

Nine Out of Ten People Suffer From It

It sends its harmful acids and gases all over the body, instead of health and strength. Day and night this ceaseless damage goes on. No matter how strong, its victim cannot long withstand the health-destroying effects of an acid stomach.

Good news for millions of sufferers. Chemists have found a sure remedy—one that takes the acid up and carries it out of the body; of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well.

Bloating, indigestion, sour, acid, gassy stomach miseries all removed. This is proven by over half a million ailing folks who have taken EATONIC with wonderful benefits. It can be obtained from any druggist, who will cheerfully refund its trifling cost if not entirely satisfactory. Everyone should enjoy its benefits. Frequently the first tablet gives relief.

NEW TIRE COMPOUND GIVEN
DEMONSTRATION AT MOKENA

A very interesting demonstration of especial interest to auto owners was shown at the Hentsch and Hellmuth garage the other night when a representative of a rubber preservative known as Puncturoid drove a nail into the tire of his car and pulled the nail out without losing a fraction of a pound of air. This was due to the fact that his tire tubes were treated with the preservative mentioned which being semi-liquid followed the opening made by the nail and instantly sealed the opening thus preventing any leakage of air from the tube.

Tires treated with this preservative are said to be immune from ordinary punctures and blowouts as well as against slow leaks of air from the tubes. All openings in the tube are hermetically sealed by the compound. Puncturoid is a vegetable and mineral compound placed in the inner tube thru the valve stem. It forms a thin coating of one-eighth inch or less, adapting itself to the laws of science with a slightly heavier coating at the extreme circumference where the need for it is the greatest. Puncturoid is said not to contain any acid or anything injurious in the slightest degree to rubber or fabric. When the tube is treated with this compound it can be removed from the casing in the usual way and transferred to another casing.

Hentsch and Hellmuth of Mokena have taken up the agency for this compound and have tried it out on cars with satisfactory results. This compound will save auto owners many dollars in tire expenses.

FOR STATE'S ATTORNEY

This is the season for candidates and they are beginning to bud now. One of the first candidates for a county office is Hjalmar Rehn, the well known Joliet attorney who is in company with Henry Schluntz in Joliet in a real estate and general law office. Attorney Rehn is a candidate for the nomination for the office of State's Attorney of Will County on the Republican ticket at the primary to be held on Wednesday, September 15, 1920.

He is thirty-three years of age and since 1889 has been a resident of Joliet. He attended the Public and High Schools of Joliet and graduated from the Northwestern University Law School in 1912 and since then has been engaged in the general practice of law. He believes he is qualified to discharge the duties of the office of State's Attorney, and if nominated and elected will discharge such duties in an honest and impartial manner. He has never been a candidate for any office before. He is well known thruout the eastern part of the county and has many warm friends here.

REPORT WIRE THEFT

This is a rather prickly story. Mrs. Henry Lehnert reports that a half spool of barb wire which had been used in building a fence on an adjoining field which she rented some time ago has been stolen. Mrs. Lehnert says that if the party who took the wire is so hard up she will gladly buy their wire for them, but she feels that it is a contemptible deed to steal from a person who is in as helpless a position as she is. Even if barb wire is prickly it is not immune from being "lifted."
